HIGH SCHOOL TO PRESENT PLAYS FRIDAY NIGHT

Three one-act plays, "The Man in the Bowler Hat," "The Deceivers," and "Grandma—Old Style," are in the last stages of rehearsal at Nevada City high school for presentation Friday evening, May 15, at 8:15 o'clock.

Rehearsals give promise of enjoyable performances, laugh-packed and full of surprises.

The three plays are being produced through the cooperative efforts of the speech and drama class, the members of the faculty, and, of course the players themselves.

Doris Hedges of the speech and drama class is the student properties manager, assisted by Warren Immel of the faculty. Violet Cozzalio is in charge of tickets. Rosemarie Day is publicity manager. Elizabeth Wilson is student assistant make-up artist.

The industrial arts classes prepare the sets, with James Beverage, Don Rollins, and Wayne Blounfield cooperating in stage managing.

These one-act plays are classics in their field and have been presented many times before with great success.

The cast of the "Man in the Bowler Hat" are: John, the husband, Ross Dahl; Mary, his wife, Virginia Pease; the Hero, Bob Thompson; the Heroine, Shirley McElhannon; chief villain, Arthur Day; bad man, Gordon Lageson; Bowler Hat, David Mott.

"The Deceivers" presents Harley Herrald as Amos Little, the jealous husband; Jenny Lamson as Flora Little, his equally jealous wife; Peter Scribner is "Phil, the Mink", a gentleman thief, who teaches a married couple the principles of honesty.

"Grandma—Old Style" has as its cast Joanne Hefelfinger as Grandma Bowdoin, whose humor is a bit acid but never to the point of being disagreeable. Maxine Ivey is Grandma Clark, the kind who tells Father Time where to head in. Joan Sheldon is Bessie Bowdoin, a club woman who uses her mind. Joe Bertino is John Bowdoin, Bessie's husband, while Howard Snyder is a obstreperous adolescent. Joyce Lee plays Mildred Bowdoin, a modern young girl.

A fine attendance is expected. Orchestra will be conducted by William Goerz. Tickets are on sale by several students and they will be available at the door. Adults 50 cents and students 25 cents.

BAND AND POSSE AWARDED FIRST PRIZES SUNDAY

Nevada City high school band won first prize as the outstanding marching unit in the Wheatland centennial parade Sunday. The band is under the direction of Willard Goerz.

Marching with the band were Majorettes Violet Cozzalio, Gloria Larson, Barbara MacDonald, Georgane Berkbaum, Shirley Baker, Diane Crase, Pat Sturtevant, Jackie Miller and Roberta Hurst.

Nevada county sheriff's posse led by Sheriff Richard W. Hoskins and President Bud Kyle, was also honored by the parade judges as the outstanding mounted unit in the parade.

DOG LICENSES ARE REQUIRED SAYS MAX SOLARO, POLICE CHIEF

Dog licenses will be required before Monday, May 23, according to an announcement yesterday by Max Solaro, chief of police. The announcement followed action by city council to enforce dog licensing ordinance

Tags are now available at city hall, according to Solaro, who warned dogs unlicensed will be impounded. License fee is $2. The 1946 ordinance had not been enforced because of lack of water at the dog pound.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION PROGRESSING

Plans for the approaching centennial celebration in Grass Valley Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, July 2, 3 and 4, are progressing rapidly, according to George Hansen, Nevada City representative at a meeting of the centennial committee Friday night in Veterans Memorial building, Grass Valley.

John Fortier, president of the Grass Valley chamber of commerce, presided at the meeting.

Willard Rose, president of the Grass Valley junior chamber of commerce stated he believed a program of dances and a fireworks display is assured for the celebration.

Grass Valley and Nevada City Business and Professional Women's clubs have issued invitations for participation in the parade on the Fourth of July.

Harold George is organizing the Nevada county band, which will furnish the music for all three days.

Nevada City will be represented in the parade with a band under the direction of Willard Goerz.

Harleth Brock, parade marshal, outlined plans for the parade.

Earl Covey, a member of the California centennial commission, said Joseph Knowland, chairman of the commission and publisher of the Oakland Tribune, would be the guest speaker. Covey has been assured Peter Connelly, incoming grand president of the Native Sons of the Golden West would be present, along with the current president, Walter Bailey.

Covey said he will be know in June whether ex-president Herbert C. Hoover, and a former resident of Nevada City, would be able to attend.

Jack Hoffman is arranging historical tours for the three days.

A barbecue chuck wagon will be operated by the Forest Springs Farm Center, according to Jerry Simpson.

Hugh Brown, business manager of the gold miners chorus, assured the cooperation of the widely popular singing group.

Highlight of the celebration will be a mammoth folk dancing festival, to which 150 groups of folk dancers in northern California have been invited.

George Hallock, president of the California Hydraulic Miners association, said one of the largest displays of gold specimens in the state will be exhibited.

CEREMONIES BRIEF AT FIRST BASEBALL GAME

Ceremonies opening the 1949 Placer-Nevada baseball league in Nevada City were brief Sunday afternoon at Pioneer park before the start of play between the Grass Valley Braves and the Nevada City Athletic club. Merrill "Buzz" Colvin, president of the club, was master of ceremonies.

Steve Pelayo, manager of the Braves, introduced his players and Marvin Haddy, manager of the home team, introduced the local players. Mayor Arthur B. Innis welcomed the fans to the park and promised the city council would do all it could to help the national game in Nevada City

Les Eua, Grass Valley, announced the game over the public address system, furnished by Richard Knee, local radio man.

Parent Education Will Meet Tonight

The parent education class, a group of fathers and mothers interested in the welfare of their children at home, at school and at play, will meet again this evening in the elementary school library at 7:30 for more informal and informative discussion on discipline and child-parent relationship. The class, under the leadership of Mrs. Marvin Shock, is sponsored by the Nevada City Elemenetary School Parent-Teacher association and meets on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month.

Chamber of Commerce Will Meet Tonight

Nevada City chamber of commerce will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in its rooms in city hall, according to an announcement by Ray Spickelmier, president.

HOME WITH BRIDE SATURDAY

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD BERLINER, pictured above, expect to arrive here Saturday following a honeymoon in the Pacific northwest. The couple were married Saturday, April 30, in St. Mary's church, Aurora, Ill. The bride is the former Miss Mary Ann Hagerty of Aurora. They will make their home on Boulder street.

DR. HUMMELT URGES VANITY APPEAL TO SLOPPY SCHOOL BOYS

Mrs. Arnold Jackson, president of the Nevada City Elementary School Parent-Teacher association, called to order her second monthly meeting last Friday night in the school auditorium. Following the salute to the Flag, led by Mr. Elza Kilroy, and the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by Secretary Mrs. George Becraft, the program was turned over to Mrs. Ernest Roberts, program chairman for the year.

Pupils of Mrs. Thibault's eighth grade presented a one act radio play over a loud speaker placed before the drop curtain of the stage. Taking part in the performance were Cecil Raetz, Koreen Buster, Bill Sturtevant, Dorothy Castro, Ronald Heckenlively, James Thomas and Violet Swartz. The sound effects were managed by Alfred Silva and Victor Ives acted as announcer.

Dr. Bernard Hummelt, speaker for the evening, discussed the value to the home, school and community of the summer round-up a physical examination given pre-school and school age children at the end of each school year. Dr. Hummelt described the thoroughness and conscientiousness of the local physicians who donate their time and medical knowledge for a search of faulty sight and hearing and for throat, lung and heart ailments. He drew a laugh from his audience when he vividly described the difference in the degree of cleanliness between little boys and little girls and urged that the vanity of little boys be appealed to in the home as the little girls' vanity is appealed to in the cosmetic and lingerie ads of the national magazines.

During the business meeting Mrs. Jackson, who has just returned from the state convention of P-TA at Los Angeles, introduced Mrs. Kent Walker, past president, who presented and described the eight awards anl commendations given the local elementary school P-TA by the state association for outstanding work during her term in office. Mrs. Walker graciously introduced and thanked the several committee chairman through whose efforts the recognition was gained. There was an award for publicity and commendations for parent education, music appreciation, student welfare, juvenile protection, program emblems and publications, and representation at district meetings.

Refreshments were beautifully served at the conclusion of the evening by the room mothers of Mrs. Kilroy's sevetnh grade, Mrs Carl Foote, Mrs. Don Steger and Mrs. James Kelley.

NORMAN ELLIS PRESIDENT OF HIGH STUDENTS

Norman Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guerdon Ellis, was elected president of the Nevada City high school student body for the 1949-50 school year at an election last week-end.

Ellis won out against Diane Crase.

Dolores Townsend, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Townsend of Gold Flat, won out in a close race for vice president over three opponents, Dean Morrison, Jim Branson and Jim Scribner.

Elizabeth Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Wilson, won in another close race with Joane Oje for the office of secretary-treasurer.

GUEST AT RANCH

Bronte Reynolds, son of Mrs. E. W. Reynolds of Grove street, was the week-end guest of his school friend, Ricky Gehrman, and Ricky's parents at their ranch home at Indian Flat.

HE'S ALL EARS

DENVER, COLO.—Five-year-old Frank Murray was all ears during a visit to the Denver Zoo. The effect of a big wingspread was obtained by posing Frank in front of a regular zoo inhabitant.

FRANCESCHI HAS NO COMMENT ON FAIR GROUNDS

R. R. Franceschi, state-appointed architect for the 17th District Agricultural Fair association, had no comment to make or plans to reveal following his conference with fair board members and officials last Wednesday. He appeared at the Grass Valley office of the county fair organization with his assistant, John P. Morgan. Both men are from Sacramento.

The architect had not been supplied with any information, wants or needs of the local fair group and was merely familiarizing himself with the organization.

The board hopes the master plan for the fair grounds will be ready in time for completion of preliminary work before the fair opens in August.

ALL OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED BY HYDRAULICS

Demonstration of a Geiger counter and a display of minerals in which radio-active material may be found, featured Sunday's meeting of the California Hydraulic Mining association at the Bret Harte inn in Grass Valley.

The display was brought to the meeting by Mort Turner, geologist of the state division of mines. He also addressed the association on the subject "Radio-Activity and U-235."

All officers and directors of the association were re-elected. They include George Hallock, Grass Valley, president; Fred Brown, Auburn, vice president; F. T. Wilmoth, Auburn, secretary; Guy Brundage, Auburn, treasurer.

ASK $38,227.59 IN SUPERIOR COURT FOR SODA SPRINGS CRASH

Two damage suits asking for $38,227.59 were filed yesterday morning in Nevada county superior court by Iver Peterson and Mrs. Dora Peterson, Gridley, against the Burlington Transportation company.

The plaintiffs were passengers on a Burlington bus enroute from Reno, Nev., to Gridley on June 20, 1948, when the bus left the road near Soda Springs and crashed into the bank, according to the complaints.

Mrs. Peterson claims she suffered a fractuered hip, cuts and bruises. She asks $35,657.59 damages. Iver Peterson asks $2,530 damages for lesser injuries.

COLLEGE MUSICIANS PRESENT PROGRAM AT HIGH SCHOOL TODAY

One of the highlight entertainment programs of the year will be presented to the student body of Nevada City high school this afternoon at 1 o'clock when Placer college brings its annual spring music and variety show to the local school.

The students will also hear the talented Chico state a capella choir present a special program in the auditorium at 2:0.

The public has been invited to the two programs.

JAPANESE-CAUCASIAN LICENSE IS ISSUED HERE ON SATURDAY

Roy Nishiguchi, 32, and Elisabeth Robillard, 28, both of Reno, Nev., were married here Saturday morning by Justice of the Peace George W Gildersleeve in his chambers. Witnesses were James Snell, superior court judge, and Thomas Barrett, county probation officer. Ralph E. Deeble, county clerk, said it is the first mixed race marriage license issued here under the recent ruling of the state supreme court invalidating the state law prohibiting licenses to such applicants.

SCOUTS TO CAMP AT BANNER MT. MAY 21 AND 22

Final plans for the annual camporee if the Scouts of the Tahoe area council, to be held on May 21 and 22, have been made, according to Scout Executive Raymond J. Ewan.

Banner Mountain lookout has been selected as the place for the Camporee this year. Scouts from Roseville, Lincoln, Loomis, Penryn, Newcastle, Ophir, Auburn, Foresthill, Applegate, Weimar, Colfax, Truckee, Tahoe City, Downieville, Alleghany, Grass Valley and Nevada City will participate in this annual event, conducted by the camping and activities committee of the Tahoe area council under the direction of Harry D. Eslick, chairman.

The personnel of the Tahoe national forest will again conduct the judging of the Scout troops under the direction of R. V. Conrad, chief judge.

Judging entails the inspection of uniforms, packs and equipment The preparation of patrol camp sites, cooking, health and safety and morale will also be judged.

A mile hike in full equipment by each patrol up to the lookout area will be a part of the program to be judged.

The selection of the lookout area was made by the camping and activities committee in response to requests by scoutmasters to provide a camporee offering a more "wilderness type of trek" on a site readily accessible to all communities of the Tahoe area council.

The camporee will provide a practical demonstration of camping in comfort with a minimum of equipment by the various troops of the two and one-half county area council.

NO WATER FROM SPAULDING DUE TO REPAIRS

The water supply for the Cascade ditch at present is dependent upon the runoff within the Deer Creek watershed because the Pacific Gas and Electric company is rebuilding some of the South Yuba flumes and cannot deliver water from Spaulding reservoir to the Deer creek power plant and thence to the irrigation canals.

It was assumed that there would be sufficient runoff during the months of April and May to take care of irrigation and domestic needs under the Cascade and Snow mountain ditches.

Lack of rain during the entire month of April is now being noticed in the runoff and the amount of water available for the Cascade ditch is below the exceptionally high demands for early irrigation.

Every available source of water is being investigated to insure that water continues for domestic services, but it is probable that irrigation services will have to be curtailed for a few days.

Power is being installed for pumping from the lower end of the new D-S extension canal up into the Chicago Park ditch to relieve the Cascade ditch to that extent.

HISTORIAL MUSEUM OPEN ON WEEKENDS

The Nevada county historical museum on Main street is now open for its third season.

Every Saturday and Sunday the building is open to visitors from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Custodian Bud Wayman has done considerable cleaning and painting and opened on schedule May 2.

Last year during the months May until September 5,890 visitors registered at the museum.

Plans are under way for further improvements and the addition of cases as soon as finances of the historical society permit.

Elmer Stevens, president of the society, states, "We want everyone to see our museum—it belongs to Nevada county".

Gifts or loans are accepted by the society through Custodian Wayman, phone 312W or Doris Foley, museum chairman. They must represent Nevada county 1850-1900.

Palmer Acquitted Of Bad Check Charge

A superior court jury acquitted Clifford A. Palmer of Nevada City, of a charge of issuing a $1,203 bad check.

The verdict was reached in 45 minutes late Friday after the jury received instructions from Judge Raymond T. Coughlin.

Palmer, a logging operator, was accused of giving the bad check to the Capital Tractor and Equipment company of North Sacramento Feb. 21.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U.S. Seeks to Avoid Chinese War As Warships Flee Shanghai Trap; Reds Talk of Berlin Blockade End

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

BOUND FOR "HOT SPOT!" . . . American marines wave from the U.S.S. St. Paul as they embark for trouble spots in China. The St. Paul, heavy cruiser, was one of the two warships leaving for China and which carried much larger complements of marines than normal.

The United States was showing the world that it planned no maneuvers which might create the situation for an "incident" leading to involvement in the Chinese war.

To the surprise of practically everyone, particularly the 2,500 Americans in Shanghai, the entire U. S. fleet fled suddenly from Shanghai, evidently having abandoned then current plans for evacuation of American nationals from the scene.

THE GOVERNMENT was sending some marines to Chinese troubled spots, but these were to do only sentry duty.

United States action came despite admittedly great provocation. The Chinese Communists, in their triumphant surge across China to Shanghai, had invaded the home of U. S. Envoy J. Leighton Stuart in Nanking and hinted he was to be held in custody.

Meanwhile, the Chinese Reds broadcast a demand for American and British officials to evacuate all their "aggressive forces" from China.

Already British warships had been fired upon and it was assumed American fleet elements had fled Shanghai in order to avoid any such predicament as was experienced by the British vessels.

THE COMMUNIST threat to Shanghai was increasing hourly and despite Nationalist decision to battle to the end, it appeared the city's plight was hopeless.

Communist victory in China would put all the western nations in a ticklish position. For, with the Reds in control of all China, those who opposed communism would be helpless and hopeless in event of a western-powers move to apply economic sanctions, if such a step should be taken. If this procedure were not to be followed, the western powers would be put in the paradoxical position of recognizing and trading with proponents of an ideology with which they were struggling in a cold war.

AUTO LABOR:

Flareup Looms

The nation's coal mines didn't present the only likely flareup in labor-employe relations as bargaining time rolled around in various industries. Those who were in position to know held the opinion that it was an "uneasy peace" which hung over the automobile industry.

UNION FLAREUPS had been quelled at the Packard and Ford motor companies and a temporary work stoppage had halted body production at the Briggs manufacturing company's plant.

The future of labor relations in the industry was as confused as it was uneasy. Recent action by manufacturers in cutting prices of automobiles had brought accusations from labor that the reductions were only "token" cuts, and did not represent a fair action on the part of the manufacturers.

However, with prices of other commodities beginning to spiral downward and easement of installment buying widened, it began to appear that labor would be in a vulnerable position by the time contract-signing time rolled around.

WHILE there was little in the press about the intentions of dynamic Walter Reuther, head of the United Automobile Workers' union, there was slight doubt that the fiery redhead would be in there pitching for his union members when the time came to sit down at the bargaining table.

Would labor attempt to overreach itself in bargaining or would it recognize the trend of the times and be content to hold present gains? That was the question whose answer would be anxiously awaited by the citizen who is always in the middle in such struggles—the average American consumer.

BERLIN:

Reds Want Talk

If the United States and Britain looked with a jaundiced eye on Russia's public offer to lift the Berlin blockade, it was thoroughly understandable. Too often the Soviets have held out the olive branch or made apparent overtures that never materialized to ease the crisis the Reds may have been developing at that time.

HOWEVER, the western powers had virtually accepted the Russian proposal to lift the Berlin blockade in exchange for a four-power conference on Germany. But it was made very plain that acceptance was based on the condition that Russia had no secret strings attached to the offer.

A U. S. state department official was quoted as saying that if Moscow's policy actually stands as it was reported in a dispatch by Tass, Russian news agency, the "way appears clear for the lifting of the blockade and a meeting of the council of foreign ministers."

At the same time, however, it was learned that the Russians were told that the United States, Britain and France do not intend to delay their plans for unifying western Germany and creating a German government, probably by July 15.

SOME TOP officials believed the Russian offer's real purpose was to delay this action, and indicated that if this were the case it was most uncertain whether a real and final agreement on the Berlin blockade would be reached any time in the near future.

The Russian proposal was construed as suggesting three concrete means for reducing international tension. These were outlined as (1) proposal for a meeting of the council of foreign ministers on the subject of Germany; (2) lifting the Berlin restrictions as soon as a meeting date was fixed for that meeting, and (3) direct negotiations between Premier Stalin and President Truman on basic conflicts between the United States and the Soviet union.

FARM PROGRAM:

Who's Confused?

The administration's bold new farm program was becoming so muddled that even its proponents seemed to be less than certain of just what its purpose is, to say nothing of how much it will cost.

When the program was first presented, the general impression generated by its proponents was that it was a duality of beneficence, as it were—a device that would keep up the price of farm products while at the same time resulting in less cost to the consumer.

TO CRITICS who callously pointed out that it would require tax money to finance such a program and that both farmers and consumers would have to pay those taxes, the plan's advocates answered that such persons simply didn't understand the aims of the proposal.

Then along came Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan with a statement that indicated he didn't quite understand it either, or if he did, it was a new conception. Now, the secretary was saying, the plan wasn't meant as a consumer subsidy at all. No indeed, it was a farm price support measure, aimed at giving the farmer a "fair return" on his investment and his labor.

SPRING COMES TO ENGLAND

Nature Gives Weird Vent to Vernal Urge

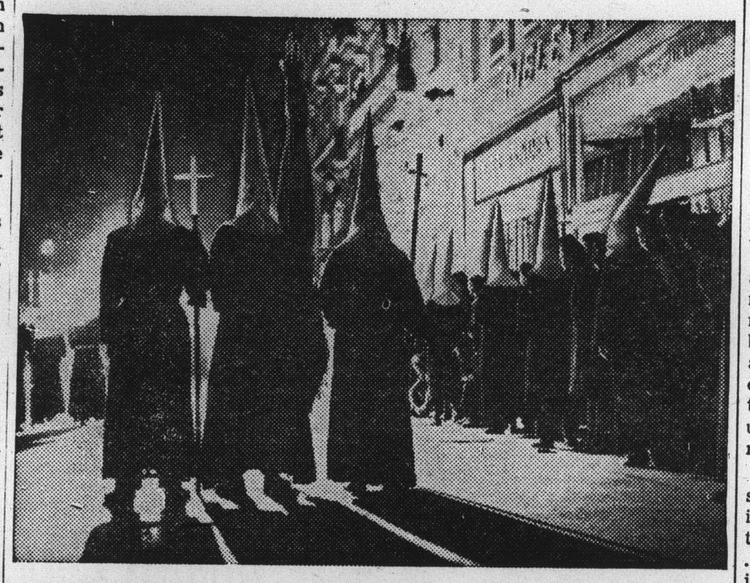
It was spring in England, and whimsey and fantasy were all around.

For instance, cows got a license to kiss. A lovelorn cat set fire to a house. A thief, no doubt actuated by the season, stole two dozen love birds. A swan, winging majestically up the Thames in search of a mate, plumped on a bridge at rush hour and piled up traffic for a mile. Everything, it seemed, was in a tizzy.

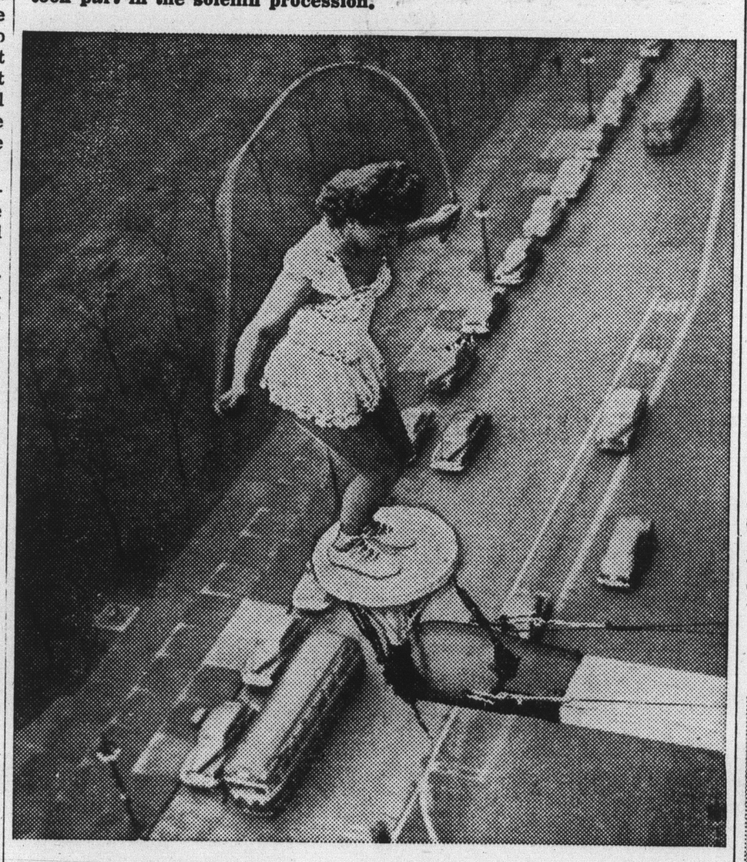
The Denham town council gave cows the kissing license. It ruled that it's all right for them to nuzzle over the fence, even if one pasture is certified tuberculosis-free and the other isn't.

A Mikado pheasant, which usually lays eggs only in its native habitat in Foromosa, laid six eggs.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN RECEIVES FIRST BUDDY POPPY . . . President Truman is shown receiving the first Buddy Poppy of the 1949 sale from five-year old Keitha M. Smith, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars home for widows and orphans in Eaton Rapids, Mich. She visited the White House for the ceremony. The Buddy Poppy sale is conducted annually by the VFW to raise funds for rehabilitation work among needy veterans.



NO KLANSMEN, THEY . . . This striking view, so similar to many seen in the United States when the Ku Klux Klan was most active, would seem to be that of a group of klansmen marching along with the traditional lighted cross—but nothing could be further from the fact. These paraders took part in observance of Holy Week in Madrid and are members of the "brotherhood of silence." About 6,000 members took part in the solemn procession.



HAVING A "HIGH" TIME . . . Defying equilibrium, gravity and sundry other things which bar this sort of thing as a pastime for ordinary persons, Betty Fox, featured performer of the Barnes Brothers circus, is shown on a tiny platform extending from a 13th floor window of the Congress hotel in Chicago.

THIS BIRD HAS TABLE MANNERS . . . 'Most any polly "wants a cracker," but only Rebecca, a stickler for propriety, insists on a spoon with hers. Besides being adept at the table graces—including proper use of knife and fork—Rebecca can dance and is an excellent conversationalist. Her vocabulary is referred to as "interesting." Her home, appropriately enough, is a restaurant called the "Chatterbox."

CREDIT CONTROLS:

Are Eased Again

Developments were shoving President Truman's demands for price control power further and further into the realm of absurdity.

THE FEDERAL reserve board, after looking the situation over, decided that installment buying controls could be lowered again safely. And this it did. It set out that on household appliances such as refrigerators, radios, electric washers, etc., the down payment would have to be only 10 per cent of the cost of the item, instead of the previous 15 per cent. On automobiles, the down payment remained at 30 per cent; but on autos and household appliances, too, the time of payment was extended from 21 to 24 months.

THIS ACTION brought both commendation and criticism. That element in the federal government which would recoup all the wartime controls for the President, was aghast at the action, terming it dangerous. Others who had watched prices continue their downward spiral—especially merchants who were facing a buyers' market and difficulty in moving goods off sales floors—saw the action as a boon to business.

SULLIVAN:

Quits Navy Post

There was little else that John L. Sullivan, secretary of the navy, could have done but resign after the "multi-million dollar reprimand" he received from Defense Secretary Louis Johnson.

SULLIVAN, as navy chief, had gone ahead with plans to construct the 65,000-ton U. S. aircraft supercarrier, the United States, despite lack of congressional authorization for the project.

It was no particular secret that abandonment of the carrier and Sullivan's resignation were all a continuing part of the apparently hopeless fight to unify the nation's armed forces. The congressional act calling for such a step has never been carried out, and the navy's attempt to go ahead with building the huge carrier without any legal authority was another example of high-handed service tactics that have tended to make unification appear impossible of realization.

DEFENSE SECRETARY Johnson, commenting on Sullivan's resignation, said, "I regret very much that my old friend and colleague . . . has joined the aircraft carrier issue on personal grounds and I believe that he too will soon regret his action of today."

DAIRYMEN:

Will Push Sales

According to the experts, milk prices would be tumbling again this summer, but American dairymen wouldn't be cheering about it.

In fact, dairymen were getting set to launch a 1.5 million-dollar campaign to promote the sale of dairy products and, at the same time, wage war on oleomargarine.

Most dairy leaders were said to believe that a promotional campaign to boost consumption was the only way to check a nose-dive in milk and butter prices that has caught producers with their income down and their costs up.

In little more than seven months, according to a federal dairy specialist, dairy prices had dropped 33 per cent. Butter, which not long ago was at almost prohibitive prices, had dipped to the government support level. Milk prices also had been falling off a cent or two at a time on retail markets.

The federal specialist pointed out that domestic unemployment has contributed to the drop in consumption of dairy products.

Grown Up

Shirley Temple, one-time "Little Miss Marker" of movie fame, now is fully grown up. She recently celebrated her 21st birthday anniversary. The dimpled child screen star of more than a decade ago is the mother of a year-old daughter.

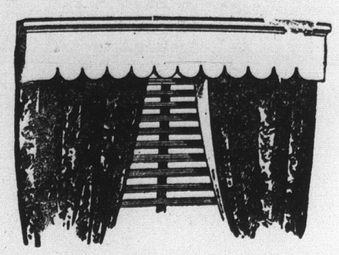
FROZEN FROG:

May Yet Jump

Dr. D. L. Albasio, of Angels Camp, Calif., was keeping his entry in the annual frog jumping contest on ice—literally speaking. He has to, because his frog, Lazarus, has been frozen stiff for an estimated 1,200 years.

The physician said he found his prehistoric frog frozen deep in the ice of Dana glacier in Yosemite national park and felt confident his entry would be able to jump.

Add Charm to Room By Making Valances



ADD CHARM to your living or dining room by making the Williamsburg style of window valance illustrated above. No, you don't have to be a carpenter or need any special tools. Just send for Full Size carpentry pattern. Trace pattern on the wood the pattern specifies, saw and assemble as the pattern indicates. It's easier to use than a dress pattern.

The pattern consists of a full size printed outline of all component parts of the valance, step by step instruction sheet that anyone can understand, numbered assembly drawings that even the most inexperienced can easily follow.

The list of materials supplied with each pattern tells what and how much to buy. All materials suggested can be purchased at any lumber yard.

Fuehrer Franco!

A diplomatic and propaganda offensive is now underway which is designed to sucker the American people into believing Franco is worthy of squatting at the same table with us. The attempt to instill an iota of humanity into the Spanish Hitler will be a tougher switch than the Jekyll-Hyde transformation, for his career is a history of infamies . . . But if Americans are gullible enough to gulp the lies about Franco and accept him as an ally—it will be a mighty triumph for deceit and a staggering moral setback for the U. S.

You can spot Franco's fingerprints all over the record of Axis crimes. On Feb. 26, 1941, he wrote to Hitler: "I stand ready at your side, entirely and decidedly at your disposal, united in a common historical destiny, desertion from which would mean my suicide and that of the Cause which I have led and represent in Spain. You need no confirmation of my faith in the triumph of your Cause and I repeat that I shall always be a loyal follower of it."

On Sept. 22, 1940, Franco informed Hitler: "I would like to thank you, dear Fuehrer, once again for the offer of solidarity. I reply with the assurance of my unchangeable and sincere adherence to you personally, to the German people and to the cause for which you fight. I hope, in defense of this cause, to be able to renew the old bonds of comradeship between our armies."

Franco's schmooching with his darling Fuehrer extended beyond mere mash notes. His aid was direct and concrete: Franco put Spanish ports at the disposal of Nazi subs. He shipped vital materials to Germany. Nazi observation crews were planted on Spanish soil to spot Allied planes. Spain was one of the leading Nazi spy centers. And Franco's diplomatic corps (throughout the globe) served as Axis espionage and propaganda agents. That political romance must have been made in Hell.

In light of past events, knowing that nests of Nazis are still rampant in Spain hardly comes as a surprise. Ever the loyal rat—Franco continued fighting for the Axis long after the fight was taken out of Mussolini and Hitler . . . On Sept. 25, 1945, it was publicly announced that German documents offered ample evidence of Spain's collaboration with the Rome-Berlin mob. Included was proof that over 1,000 Nazi agents were being sheltered by Franco.

That report was issued by our state dep't.

A second-hand halo is now perched over Franco's thick skull—the same one Hitler displayed when he was mouthing peace-talk in hysterical tones. Spain's Fuehrer unveils the sympathy act every hour on the hour. He desires our food, our coin, our guns — and strawberry shortcake twice a week.

Don't laugh! But Stalin's world-conquest illusions can be matched only by Franco. Spain's bully-boy hasn't made a secret of this wild ambition . . . Proof? Several years ago Spain's Fascist party issued a blueprint of its plans to extend Franco's power. It contained 26 points—the 5th point made Franco's globe-grabbing ambitions clear. Read it and wince.

You can measure Franco's devotion to his people by adding the bullets his firing squads used to riddle Spaniards who criticized his regime . . . In 1940 the United States offered to relay shiploads of wheat to succor the famine-stricken population in Spain. That act of charity was flung back in Uncle Sam's face. Franco's gov't not only turned down the offer but coupled the rejection with a vilification of the American people.

Our Franco-coddling publications are currently publishing pretty pictures of the Spanish scallion. The batch of flatterig poses almost makes you think they were slating him for a screen test . . . But you won't spot the following facts there: Franco's censor once banned The Osservatore Romano—the Vatican's official newspaper . . . Have another: Hitler gifted Spain with various church furnishings which Franco eagerly accepted heaping praise on chum Adolf—although he was aware that the Nazis had obtained it by looting Catholic churches in Poland.

Those shoveling the horseradish for Franco here have concocted the most monstrous falsehood. The Spanish leader, they say, is a veritable goldmine of military wisdom and we should jump at the opportunity to grab a few nuggets.

Italy Wants Colonies

PRESIDENT TRUMAN was sympathetic, but noncommittal, when five Italian-American congressmen braced him about the return of Italy's war-lost colonies in Africa. Led by forthright freshman Rep. Anthony Tauriello of New York, the White House callers contended that Italy's joining the Atlantic pact demonstrated her right to the colonies.

Rep. Anthony Cavalcante of Pennsylvania enlivened the proceedings with a charge that Great Britain was deliberately blocking a settlement of the issue.

"It will mean less Marshall plan spending in Italy if the colonies are returned, for the Italian government then will have an outlet for its surplus population, including 250,000 refugees who left Africa for Italy during the war," argued Tauriello.

"These people, many of whom are on relief, will be able to support themselves by farming in the colonies," he argued. "Also, Italian opposition to communism will be stiffened if the colony question is settled. As you know, before the Italian election last year, Russia favored the return of the colonies, but since then Russia has opposed their return under a United Nations trusteeship or otherwise."

"I will do anything I can to help the Italian people," replied Truman. "But I cannot commit myself on this question. It is a world problem and the decision will have to be made by the United Nations."

Representative Tauriello and his colleagues — Peter Rodino (N. J.), Hugh Addonizio (N. J.), Gary Clements (N. Y.) and Cavalcante—all agreed that Truman couldn't dictate to the U. N.

"We understand your position," said the outspoken Cavalcante, a down-the-line battler for Truman domestic policies. "It's too bad Great Britain doesn't also live up to United Nations principles. Britain has been blocking the return of these colonies because she wants them for herself.

"If the United Nations government lets Britain get away with it, then all I can say is that we are not pursuing the international policy of moral right to all nations, great and small, on which the U. N. was founded."

Note—American Negroes are up in arms against the return of African colonies to Italy. They remember the rape of Ethiopia. Also, Negro G. I.'s who served in North Africa recall brutal Italian treatment of natives.

Truman's Old Haunts

Seldom has President Truman had such a gay time as when he visited his old haunts in the senate on the anniversary of Roosevelt's death. He led a procession of senators and secret service men on to the senate floor. On the way, he ducked into the Vice-President's office and signed the register under Cardinal Spellman's name. Since Vice-President Barkley was out of town, Truman also scribbled a note to him on a scratch pad.

"Dear Mr. VP," he scrawled, "called to see you to get some advice—HST."

In the senate cloak room, the President took a squint at the news ticker.

"They didn't have these here in my day," he remarked.

Then, referring to Washington's newspaper strike, he added mischievously: "I'm not getting my newspaper at home. I'll have to read your ticker."

The President marched out of the senate chamber and peeked into Senate Secretary Les Biffle's office. Biffle was recuperating from the grippe at Bethesda naval hospital, so the President sat down and scribbled another note.

"Les," he wrote, "I wish you were here. I tried to see the VP—he was gone. Now you are out. What shall I do? Looks as if I'll have to consult with the senate—HST."

Not satisfied with just leaving a note, the President picked up the phone and called Biffle at the hospital.

"Hello, Les," he chirped. "I'm sitting at your desk, so I thought I would call you up."

The President chatted about Biffle's health, then hung up. At that moment, a call came into the office and Truman thought it would be a good joke to answer it. But he couldn't find the right button. When a secretary beat him to it, he pulled a wry face.

From Biffle's office, the President returned to the senate floor and took his former seat. There Florida's Sen. Claude Pepper placed a hand on his shoulder and joked:

"Well, I hope you're going to vote for the program of our President."

"I sure would," chuckled Truman, "if I had a vote."

SUSPECT . . . George Albert Brennan, 17, trainee at Lackland air force base, San Antonio, Tex., was arrested in connection with the "lonely hearts" killings in Delaware. The youth told officers he took no part in the killing of two men.

CUPID'S TURN . . . Cupid has hit safely in the case of Johnny Groth, 22, sensational Detroit rookie outfielder, who is going to marry his sweetheart with whom he is shown here. She is Betty Stoll of Chicago, who was in the stands when Groth sparked his big league debut with two homers.

CONTESTS WILL . . . Screen extra Gloria Schumm will contest the will of the late Wallace Beery, screen actor, claiming he was the father of her year-old son. She said she would file a claim for $100,000 for support of the child.

FORLORN FIGURE . . . Joe DiMaggio, ailing New York Yankee outfielder, presents a forlorn figure as he sits in the Yankee dugout at the season's opening game. Joe has a heel spur that refuses to heal.

LITTLE COLONIALS . . . Ann Cole Kernodle, 3, and her brother John Robert Kernodle, Jr., of Burlington, N.C., were among the flower bearers to the president general at the opening of the 58th congress of the DAR.

Where-o-where Are the Kid Stars?

By GRANTLAND RICE

THE NATIONAL PASTIME (slang for baseball) takes over until October 2 when football will be at high speed, outdrawing baseball two to one at that frosty date.

In the same way, enough sun has been drifting from blue skies to get a few million golfers out for another big campaign on some 5,000 courses.

Grantland Rice

Baseball is largely for the spectators. Golf is 90 per cent for the players. Golf still has the largest outdoor turnout for the players, barring fishing and hunting, which are strictly personal affairs. In fishing and hunting the contest is between a human and a fish, fowl or animal.

All of this is a slow preamble to the fact that both baseball and golf, two playing games, are running out of kids. Both sports are looking for more of the young stars of other years—kids like Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth and Grover Alexander—or such golf kids as Bobby Jones, Gene Sarazen, Walter Hagen, Francis Ouimet and Chick Evans who were stars at 20 and 21.

The fact is that neither baseball nor golf has the brilliant kids of 20 years ago.

Who are baseball's 1949 stars? Stan Musial, 28. Ted Williams, 30. Joe DiMaggio, 34. Lou Boudreau, 32. No kids have reported. It is the same in golf. Most of the stars include players above 31 or 32.

Sammy Snead, Lloyd Mangrum, Byron Nelson, Jimmy Demaret are no longer on the younger competitive side.

They are well over 30. Cary Middlecoff is close to 30.

But the point is there are no Ty Cobbs, Bobby Jones, Walter Hagens, Gene Sarazens, etc., marked against the skyline. The great kids of yesterday, for the time being, are gone.

In baseball they are paying bonuses from $50,000 to $75,000 for high-school kids who might finally be worth $2,000. Or nothing at all. You can't blame the kids, or their parents, for grabbing this sucker cash, the greatest sucker cash in the history of sports.

The two big leagues have invested over $500,000 in kid bonus players. They will be lucky to get $50,000 back in the way of value.

The age problem is even worse in golf. Such great kids as Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Chick Evans and Francis Ouimet are now ghosts from another generation. Frank Stranahan, at 27, is the best we have left.

In both baseball and golf, the kid stars of long ago and now almost-forgotten years have moved into middle age. At least this is now where most of the headliners belong.

Golf's Leading Marvel

It was a matter of just 27 years ago over the well-trapped terrain of Skokie, Chicago, that 20-year-old Gene Sarazen won the open golf championship of the United States. I followed that final round. In the same year, Sarazen won the P.G.A. title at Oakmont.

Twenty-seven years is a long span in competitive sport. Yet a few days ago, I followed Gene Sarazen at the Masters in Augusta. He was hitting the ball better in 1949 than he was in 1922. He was longer off the tee and he was straighter. I saw good young golfers of 27 or 30 finish well in back of stocky Gene's wallops.

I spoke to Gene about this later. "You must be 10 or 15 yards better than you were at Skokie and Oakmont, when you were only 20," I said.

"There isn't any question about that," Gene said, with a well-remembered half grin. "I'm hitting the ball much better than I did when I was winning championships. I am both longer and straighter. I have control over a greater number of shots.

"Yes," he continued, "and I know your next question. Why is it I'm not winning? That's simple. There are two or three answers. One is legs. Another is ambition. The third is concentration. There is a lot of difference between your legs at 20 and 47. And tired golfers don't do so well.

"The only urge to win left years ago. When you've won the U.S. Open, the British Open, the P.G.A. and other titles, the old ambition of youth begins to wither.

You are no longer willing to take the mental and nerve beating. Even Bobby Jones wasn't.

"I kept playing but, like Jones, Nelson and others who retired, I found it impossible to keep concentrating through 72 holes, 36 holes or 18 holes. I can concentrate for a while, but not for too long. I miss a shot or two now and say, 'aw, what the heck,' and concentrate on about every third shot.

EDITORIAL POLICY

A newspaper is primarily a public trust and secondarily a private enterprise. Fortunately Nevada county has more than one newspaper, so many sides of a question or a controversial subject can be aired without any single newspaper being accused of being a "yellow sheet" without courage or the editor politely labeled as stupid, careless or mugwump.

Those who oppose the best interests of the public, those who would distort or withhold truths, prefer the one-newspaper counties and its often attendant horse trades and implied censorship.

A newspaper in a small city works under the burden of limited size, staff and income. The small newspaper cannot afford a non-revenue producing news gathering staff of reporters large enough to cope with all the many news developments of local government and private affairs. But within that limitation any newspaper that wilfully disregards the creed of its public trust and does not try to keep the people informed of their affairs is violating that trust An uninformed people is easily mislead, is easily grafted, is easily dispoiled.

It is wrong to blister public officials merely for the sake of sensationalism, but it is an even worse offense to cut the heart out of news merely because the news involves controversial official acts.

Lawyer William Arthur says: "It is generally recognized that unrestricted newspaper comment upon and criticism of the acts and official conduct of those in public office is the best insurance and safeguard against corrupt practices and the misuse of official power. Free comment and criticism has the effect, also, of exposing incompetence and neglect of duty."

Without a newspaper's reporting of government acts, the people would soon lose control of its government. Even here, it could happen.

A PARK AT DEER CREEK?

Have you ever watched the ducks in Deer creek near the Plaza? Every day several persons can be observed engrossed in the antics of the little critters.

But watching the ducks what do you see? A jumble of water and rocks and mud.

Why not put a park in the bed of the creek? The park would need to be only large enough to add a touch of greenness and restfulness to the view Brought to our attention by two of Nevada's City's leading citizens, John Sbaffi and Bob Paine, it carries the endosement of many public spirited citizens.

Virginia creeper has been recommended as a vine growth to cover the walls. Flowers would attract to the almost perfect terrace on one side and a small load of dirt would fill the necessary places. A few shrubs and some grass and you have the park complete.

With the completion of the dam at Scott's Flat the danger of floodtide washing away the park has been practically eliminated. And it appears to us the upkeep would not be a major item.

Let's do something.

ANOTHER WEEK

In last Tuesday's issue we ran a list of the special weeks occuring that week. It appears we left one out. "National Rural Mail Box Improvement Week," in which the post office department encourages rural box owners to paint their boxes, letter faded names and shore up the sagging posts. Maintenance of the approved type of mail boxes is a small thing to ask in exchange for the year in, year out good service we receive from the men who carry the rural free delivery. Do it today.

Anyone who has attempted to locate a rural resident by reading the names on rural boxes sometimes finds it not a simple easy task. The only time it is handy to have an illegible mail box is when the bill collectors come around.

CAR LUBRICATION

Improper lubrication of bearings and bearing surfaces is responsible for many automobile breakdowns, according to the California Automobile association which advises car owners to select one reliable lubricating service and have all lubricating done by the same station, if possible, so that responsibility for proper lubrication will be fixed.

The deepest known place in the North Atlantic ocean, "Milwaukee Depth," is 30,246 feet, about 95 miles northwest of Puerto Rico.

RENEW RADIATOR HOSE

Renewal of radiator and heater hoses when your car is being overhauled is advised by the California State Automobile association. Hot water flowing through rubber hose under pressure for a period of time may cause the interior of the hose to swell and retard the flow of water, although outwardly the hose may appear to be in perfect condition.

Just Wonderin'

I Wonder about heaven now,
Oh yes, the other place as well,
I do believe you're wondering too,
But you don't tell

A few nights ago, we were talking with a group of friends about the great telescope on Palomar, one of those present, said, I wonder if there will ever be a telescope that will permit us to look right into heaven."

It was a curious idea and for a split moment, no one spoke, then some one laughed and with one accord we stepped down from the stars and began speaking of our every day world and the many conflicting beliefs that hold the human mind in thrall.

The subject of heaven intrigues us all at one time or another and most of us have changed our ideas of it more than once. As a small child, the location of heaven seemed of vast importance to me, and one day I asked a visitor about it; without a moment's hesitation she pointed straight up at the chandelier. Some one had told me that the world turned over, so I began and followed for several days a line of speculation that led no where either up or down. I moved about in a maze of bewilderment such as we grown ups so often prepare for the child mind, so many times without special effort. A careless explanation, a question hurriedly answered. We really should be more careful.

"Where is heaven"? So many answers have been given to that query, that it would be presumptuous for me to evolve one; but I feel sure it will never be discerned through the telescope of Palomar. Perhaps the great Persian poet, Omar had the right idea when he wrote —

"I sent my soul through the invisible,
The secret of the after life to spell,
And bye and bye my soul returned to me,
And answered, I myself am heaven and hell."

Surely it is only within ourselves, that we shall find our heaven or our hell and I greatly rejoice to know that it is within our power to choose between the two. Ours is the choice, ours and no others.

We hear in detail of the vexed problems of the world, but not so much of its quiet and effective progress toward a better way of life and a finer way of living. Truly the progress of man is often slow and painful; strange for instance that we have just begun to debunk the old theory that, killing one person makes one a murderer, while killing thousands makes him a hero.

Chaotic as the world now is, men are beginning to think straight, to use logic and to exercise reason. War will yet be outlawed and soon there will be laws which will be used to punish those who engage in mass murder for any cause at all but self defense.

Yes Gallileo, "the world moves," and we are moving along with it, with better thoughts and better plans for a better tomorrow.

Adeline Merriam Conner.

SLOW STARTING

When an automobile engine does not start promptly, the trouble may be caused by a partially discharged battery, according to the California State Automobile association. Slow starting also causes crankcase dilution and cylinder wear, due to raw gasoline being pumped into the cylinders where it washes the lubricant from the cylinder walls into the crankcase.

The letter of the law of God, separated from its spirit, tends to demoralize mortals, and must be corrected by a diviner sense of liberty and light.

—Mary Baker Eddy

LOW BEAM ADVISED

When driving at night in heavy traffic, operation of your car's headlights entirely on the low beam is advised by the California State Automobile association. The vehicle code requires shifting to the low beam when within 500 feet of an oncoming vehicle. Use of the low beam when in heavy night traffic avoids frequent shifting from high to low.

There can be no exceptions to the time-tested rules of traffic safety, warns the California State Automobile association. Your one exception can be the cause of an accident.

GOLD DIGGER'S TRAIL

Charles Scott Haley

We paddled out way up in the lee of the other bank and landed at the roadhouse in silence for a moment. But soon our erstwhile slavedriver was patting me on the back and bubbling over with genial humor. Whether from relief or from weariness, we ourselves expanded to meet him, and it was a happy group that piled out to make a much appreciated dinner.

Next day we started out with a wagon and two horses which were a part of the roadhouse menage. The plan was to go as far as the Delta River, where the road stopped, and then to use one animal for a pack mule, and ride the other by turns, to Portage Creek, about forty miles away. We fought our way through an overgrown trail till we reached the Delta river about noon, and then loaded our baggage and started on afoot, taking turns for an hour at a time with the saddle animal. About eight in the evening, we decided to camp. We had come out of the timber belt onto a sort of tundra which was very difficult walking for several miles, and finally reached a small hill on the far side.

We pitched our beds on the grounds, set mosquito tents over them, and ate a meal of soggy hotcakes and coffee, and turned in to sleep. At least we hope so; but by that time the breeze had died down, and all the mosquitos in Alaska as well as considerable Candian reinforcement, descended upon us. I have suffered mosquitos on the headwaters of the Amazon, along the coasts of Central America, and in the wilds of Colombian jungles, but I have yet to see anything so consummately savage and bloodthirsty as the mosquito of the Alaskan tundra. Our nets were not much protection, because they sent sapper squads underneath to open the way for new detachments as fast as we had massacred the ones already inside.

The sun was up till nearly midnight, and then it just wound itself down the horizon for half an hour, and came up again in the early morning So we were out and on the road about three o'clock, glad to be rid of our tormentors in the early morning breeze.

That afternoon we arrived at our destination on Portage Creek. Our companion—the one beside Frank, the packer—was carrying the only rifle in the party, and we had seen considerable game, both young moose and caribou, so while we made ourselves comfortable in his camp, he set out to provide us with some moose meat. In this he was successful, and came back to camp for the packhorse. I accompanied him out for about a mile and helped him cut up an enormous bull. With what seemed to me shameful waste, we only took the hind quarters, leaving the rest for the wolves, but those two quarters weighed two hundred pounds apiece, and were all that we could load or the packhorse could carry. But it sure tasted good to have moose steaks with our hotcakes next morning.

The next few days were spent between sampling the property and fighting mosquitos, in about equal proportions. The ground had been surface placered for some years in a small way, but we could find nothing of commercial grade for a company to operate.

As it was more and more evident from our manner of testing that the property was unsatisfactory, the prospector who had come out with us—who owned the property and also the only rifle in the outfit—became glummer and more hostile. Finally, we set a day in which to return. He not only declared his intention of staying where he was but said that he would not lend his gun to Frank, our guide, for any compensation whatever. As it was less than two day's ride to Martins, this did not greatly worry us—we had seen nothing but moose and caribou and black bear on the way out—so one bright morning, we set out.

Frank was leading the pack animal, which had our only weapon—a sharp axe—packed with bedding rolls and equipment. Janin and I took turns in riding our saddle animal. The morning was bright and sunny and the only trouble we were anticipating was a night's camp with mosquitos, and we thought we might avoid that if we put in an eighteen hour day and got back to Martins.

Along about eleven o'clock, I happened to be riding the horse, and as we were crossing around the head of Ohio Creek, I saw some caribou way down the gulch As they are very curious beasts, I thought I would ride out toward them and see if they would run up close enough for me to get a good picture. I had my camea ready in hand, and sure enough, as soon as they saw me, they started to run for me. I thought at the distance—over a mile—that the three of them looked low slung for caribou, when I was startled by a yell from Frank.

"Those aint caribou, your durned fool! They're glacier bear."

"What can we do?" said Janin.

"Do! There's nothin' we can do without a gun, but run fer our lives. Them bear have all been shot at and they're mean, and tougher than a grizzly. Three of 'em will tackle anything on earth. Run like hell, mister, and keep your horse's head away from them, or he'll bolt."

We started at a jog trot across the divide, and kept out of sight of the bears, who were running back up the creek and quartering slightly away from us. There was not a tree in sight for miles—nothing but bare grass covered rolling hills.

My horse did not appreciate the importance of the occasion, and could not run fast enough. So I offered him to Janin, who was an older man, and got off and showed the horse how to run.

Mrs. Floy-Margaret Reynolds, Society Editor

The kindest courtesy you can show your guests is to have their names in your home-town newspaper. The nicest gesture you can give your hosts when you are away visiting is the mention of their names in your newspaper. And we will greatly appreciate publishing your items. Mrs. Floy-Margaret Reynolds, telephone 186-J, is our society reporter and will be glad to assist you in reporting the event. Or a call to the Nugget office, 305 Broad street, or telephone 36, will place your news in print.

WOMAN ENVOY FROM INDIA ARRIVES

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Mrs. Vijaya Lakshima Pandit, center, newly appointed Ambassador from Indian and sister of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, arrived with her daughter, Rita, 19. On hand to greet them is B. R. Sen, Charge d' Affairs of the Indian Embassy. Mrs. Pandit, who will be the first and only woman Ambassador in Washington, said the lifting of the Berlin blockade was "a good sign for world peace."

Columbia Parlor 70 Organized in 1891

By Mrs Roberta Stuart

Native Daughters of the Golden West was first established in the ridge area at North San Juan in 1891. Columbia parlor No. 70 was organized in French Corral in 1892 and gradually absorbed the older parlor. All the banners and records have been preserved.

In the lodge room is an old banner reading:

GRAND BALL GRAND
and Entertainment
Will be given by .....
Columbia Parlor No. 70
French Corral
Christmas Eve, 1894

Among many original features of the entertainment will be the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Committee: Mrs. Laura Heath, Mrs. Mary French, Mrs. Emma Heath, Mrs. Ann Bean, Miss Kate Forrelly, Miss Lily Moulton, Mrs. K. Hogan, Mrs Lizzie Moroney, Mrs. Julia Hoffman.

Invited from New Town, Pleasant Valley, Berchville, Sweetland, Cherokee, Columbia Hill.

James Fogarty, floor director; William Moulton, David Miller, floor managers. Admission to entertainment 25 cents; children 10 cents; ticket including ball and supper $1.50; music by Hoffman's Dance Trio.

Printed by Nevada City Daily Transcript.

Robert Sauers of Sweetland was severely burned in the face.

Mrs. Adele Browning and Mrs. William Browning were hostesses at a card party and old-time dance Saturday evening at the historic French Corral school house. Music was furnished by the Rhythm Rascals: Frank Stuart, violin and mandolin banjo; Waid Oden, violin; Lowell Struckman, piano accordion; Mrs Roberta Stuart, drums. Everyone apparently enjoyed himself and a lot of the dancers asked when the next dance will be held. Watch this column.

Mrs. Annie Browning of Nevada City is visiting with her son, Mr. and Mrs. A. Browning in French Corral.

Mr. andMrs. John Hippert and son of Reno, Nev., were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs Waid Oden.

Mrs. F. A. Stuart called at the home of Mrs. Leo Hammer in North San Juan.

If you would like music for modern and old time dancing notify the Rhythm Rascals by contacting either Frank Stuart, Waid Oden or Lowell Struckman.

Love birds are really parrots.

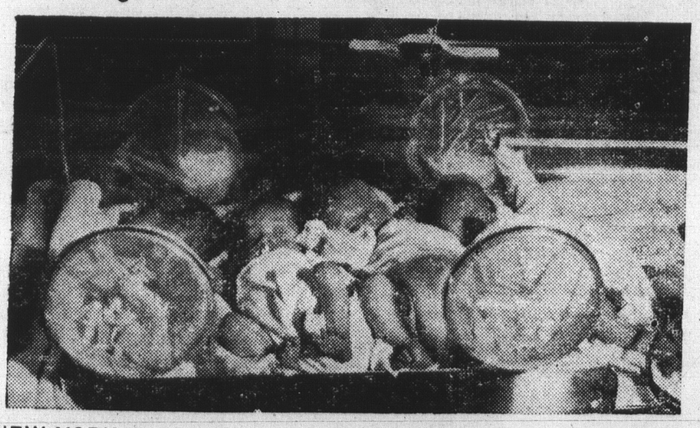
"QUADS—THEY'RE WONDERFUL"



NEW YORK, N. Y.—These were the words of Mrs. Esther Collins, 28, when she got her first look at the quadruplets—two boys and two girls born to her at Lenanon hospital, The Bronx. The circular apertures in the incubator are plastic-sleeved openings for the insertion of ministering hands. The quads father, Charles, 29, is a brokerage clerk. The Collins already have one son and have been assured of a new home to replace their present three-room apartment.

Star Dust
STAGE - SCREEN - RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

JIM AND MARIAN Jordan had been in and out of small-time show business for several years when a $10 bet landed them on the radio. They were visiting Jim's brother in Chicago when Jim remarked that he and Marian could do a better job of singing than anyone on the radio program they were listening to; Jim's brother bet him $10 they couldn't. That was a lot of money to the Jordans then; they showed up at Station WIBO, and landed on the air. Five months later the radio job ended, and they went back to vaudeville. It was not until later that they became "Fibber McGee and Molly" in one of radio's top ranking radio series.

When Ingrid Bergman went to London for some location scenes in "Under Capicorn" she learned that there is a great difference between extra players there and in Hollywood. In England "Mob extras" are called "crowd artists."

Burt Lancaster is back in the circus; he finished "Rope of Sand" and headed for Louisville, Ky., and the Cole Brother's circus, to do an acrobatic act with his former partner, Nick Cravat; will appear with it in 26 cities.

Peter Lorre's year of personal appearances has convinced the public that he's not the little monster he portrays on the screen. He visited many veterans' hospitals, especially those other entertainers had overlooked—doesn't sing or dance, so had to rely on informal talks. Now he is back in Hollywood in "Quicksand," with Mickey Rooney—playing a little monster!

Dr. Henry Darlington, Rector of New York's Church of the Heavenly Rest, recently appeared as family counselor on "The Second Mrs. Burton." Listening to the singing commercials, he remarked, "If churches used a device as catchy as this, I could guarantee standing room only." No doubt he went home and asked the cook to try those seven delicious flavors.

Julie London, soon to be seen in "Task Force," has cut in on Dorothy Lamour's territory. Till Julie appeared, Dorothy was the best known ex-department store elevator operator in pictures. Julie ran one, too, in a Hollywood store.

Howard "Sam Spade" Duff relived a scary experience when he and other members of the "Partners in Crime" cast were flying to Universal-International's location in Tucson. The plane shook violently, and one engine went dead. Finally landed on the remaining three. When he was in the South Pacific during the war, Duff was in a plane that encountered severe headwinds, threatened to run out of gas. He admits that he was as scared as anybody else, but he took out some cards and started a poker game.

"The Octopus and Miss Smith" location stint at Pt. Sequit never will be forgotten by the cast. Director Michael Curtis was knocked cold by a falling beam. Jane Wyman got pecked on the hand by a tame (?) goose. Eve Arden's mishap caused the longest delay; a dog chased her, she lost her artificial bangs, and couldn't go on acting till another set arrived from the studio.

Almira Sessions, featured in "Night Unto Night," has bought three lots on one side of her Woodland hills home and four on the other. Four years of hearing other people's radios through apartment house walls made her appreciate quiet.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . With the need to learn about television hanging over their heads, Hollywood producers and directors are heading for New York to see how "The Goldbergs" is put together; they say it's the slickest thing of its kind on video . . . But like quite a few other actors, Jimmy Cross left the West coast several months ago to work in eastern video studios, now is back home to work in "Quicksand" . . . Shirley Temple, married and the mother of a 15-month-old daughter, is finally 21.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Versatile Waffles Fit Any Menu!
(See Recipes Below)

Waffle Tricks

"AS LONG as I know how to make waffles, I can get together a good breakfast, a fancy luncheon or serve a glamorous dessert," said a new bride. This young lady was indeed on the right track; she had perfected one dish, and she could be certain that any occasion would be covered simply but adequately with it.

Waffles may be varied in many different ways, and they can easily go from breakfast to luncheon to dessert for dinner or a party. No, not the same waffle, of course, but with a slight variation waffles really can do all these things.

Plain waffles with butter and syrup or honey are ideal for breakfast main dishes. Try pairing them with crisply browned sausages, crisply browned bacon strips, or ham.

For luncheon, vary the waffle, and serve with creamed eggs, chicken, tuna fish or mushrooms.

The dessert waffle is rich, and it may be plain, orange or even chocolate-flavored. Have you ever put together chocolate waffles with peppermint stick ice cream and passed the chocolate sauce? Yes, simple but very elegant! Or, how about crisp and golden brown waffles crowned with whipped cream and bananas? Yes, another favorite!

BASIC WAFFLES may be quickly and simply made from a pancake mix in the following manner:

Quick Waffles
(Makes 5 servings)

2 cups pancake ready-mix
⅓ cup melted shortening
2 eggs
2 cups milk

Place all ingredients in a medium-sized mixing bowl. Beat with a rotary egg beater until batter is fairly smooth. Pour batter into a waffle iron which has been heated. Bake until iron stops steaming.

Honey-Butter Sauce: Warm one cup of liquid honey in the top part of a double boiler. Add to it ¼ cup butter, ¼ teaspoon of cinnamon and a dash of nutmeg. Serve warm.

Light and delicious oatmeal waffles have a nutty flavor all their own. Besides adding flavor, rolled oats make waffles high in the important B vitamins, protein and iron. They're excellent served with butter and syrup, along with crisp bacon. For a supper main dish, pair them with creamed eggs.

Oatmeal Waffles
(Makes 6 servings)

1¼ cups sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1½ cups milk
1/3 cup melted shortening
½ cup quick, rolled oats, uncooked

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add eggs, milk and melted shortening.

Beat with rotary egg beater until fairly smooth. Fold in rolled oats.

IF YOU WANT to serve these waffles for a quick supper or luncheon dish, here is a suggestion for creamed eggs.

Creamed Eggs
(Serves 6)

2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon onion juice
2 cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
6 hard-cooked eggs, shelled and chopped

Melt butter in top of double boiler; add flour, onion juice and salt. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly, and cook until smooth and thickened. Add the eggs and cook until heated through. Serve over waffles.

Corn Meal Waffles
(Makes 5 Servings)

1 cup sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup corn meal
2 eggs
1-1/3 cups milk
¼ cup melted butter or fat

Sift together dry ingredients. Place eggs, milk, sifted dry ingredients and melted butter in a bowl. Beat with rotary beater until batter is smooth. Do not overbeat. Pour batter onto hot waffle iron and bake until iron stops steaming.

* * *

THERE ARE ANY number of variations for dessert waffles. Use them for an easy dessert, or serve them as a party snack.

Dessert Waffles
(Makes 10-12 small waffles)

1 cup sifted cake flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
3 eggs, separated
1 cup rich milk

Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon - colored. Add to milk, then blend in dry ingredients. Fold in melted butter and last, the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into waffle iron and bake until steaming ceases.

Ice Cream and Waffles: Use dessert waffles, top with a scoop of vanilla ice cream and serve with sweetened, crushed strawberries or chocolate sauce and bananas.

Chocolate Chip Waffles: Stir into the batter, before baking, ½ cup semi-sweet chocolate chips.

Chocolate Waffle: Add to dessert waffle, ½ cup sugar sifted with dry ingredients. Fold in with butter, 1½ squares, melted, unsweetened chocolate.

Orange Waffles: Fold in the dessert waffle batter, two tablespoons orange juice and 1½ teaspoons grated orange rind. Serve with orange or pineapple sauce.

LYNN SAYS:
Use these Hints For Making Waffles

Season the grids of a new waffle iron unless the manufacturer advises you otherwise. To season the iron, when it is still cold, brush with cooking oil. Heat the iron to baking temperature and allow to cool. Discard the first waffle made as it will be greasy. After this, waffles will not stick to the iron.

Don't peek into the waffle iron while it steams. This means the waffle is still baking.

If batter spills on the iron, let it cook on before trying to remove it When dry, it flicks off easily.

When brown spots appear on the iron, from spattering fat, use a fine scouring powder, rubbed gently, to remove them.

Keep waffle cords in good condition by putting them away without kinks and knots.

Leftover kernel corn, cooked rice and blueberries may be added to waffle batter. One cup of any of these food items is folded in the waffle before baking.

Life Insurance Bought In 1948 Breaks Record

Life insurance in the United States has made greater gains in recent years than in any comparable period of its history. More new life insurance was purchased here in 1947 than the total owned at the end of the year in the United Kingdom, which ranks second to the United States in the amount of such insurance held throughout the world. New life insurance purchased in 1948 in this country amounted to $22.7 billion, bringing the total owned at the end of the year to $201 billion, the highest ever reported and more than the aggregate estimated to be owned in 1940 throughout the world. The total is still less, however, than the annual national income in recent years. United States families bought about as much life insurance in 1948 as the total in force here in 1915.

The number of policies owned in the United States now exceeds 189 million, and the amount of insurance per family averages nearly $5,000, almost twice the 1924 level.

Glaucoma and Blindness

Glaucoma, the cause of which is still unknown, is responsible for about 12 per cent, or 30,000 cases, of the 250,000 cases of total blindness in the United States.

Study Vibrations of Jets

An instrument which can measure as many as 300 vibrations per second is enabling engineers to study vibrations of jet engines in flight. The vibration meter, developed in the G-E general engineering and consulting laboratory at Schenectady, registers the amplitude, velocity, and acceleration of the vibrations. The detector itself is a cylinder three inches high and two inches in diameter, which converts vibrations of the engine into electrical impulses.

Early Railroad Problems

That most familiar of all railroad accessories, the cowcatcher, is a unique American institution, Mitford M. Mathews, University of Chicago dictionary editor, says.

No other industry has affected the American language as much as the railroads, which began to play a very important part in the nation's culture as early as 1830, according to Matthews.

The cowcatcher was called a "cowlifter," a "horselifter," and several other titles before someone hit upon the happy combination "cowcatcher."

The early cowcatchers were forged of grillwork 10 feet long, extending from the front of the engine to the track, with the foremost section resting on its own pair of wheels. With good reason many people called the contrivance a "pilot."

Developed by the early American railroaders to solve the problem of rescuing stray cattle that wandered on the track, the cowcatcher solved a problem not met in any country. The word came into usage in 1830 when the engineer stopped his train and got help to lift the cattle down from the grill work.

The rapid, almost phenomenal increase in planting of roses in recent years bears testimony to the popularity the "Queen of Flowers" has achieved in America.

The rose is the universal favorite in gardens large and small all over the country. No other flower seems to give such rich rewards in beauty, fragrance and satisfaction. No other flower is more gracious inside the home.

What pleases gardeners more than anything else is the ease with which these lovely flowers can be grown. With only a minimum of care, which any ordinary plant requires, roses can produce a profusion of lovely and fragrant blossoms in a wide range of colors. Moreover, with the improvements achieved by hybridizers, roses are increasingly sturdy, hardy and resistant to disease. Many of them bloom over a long season from June until late fall so that the gardener with the foresight to plant roses, can keep his home well supplied with this aristocrat of flowers and at the same time be generous to his friends. The joy of receiving a bouquet of freshly cut roses is equaled only by the joy of giving them.

Camel Newspaper Campaign Features 30-Day Mildness Test And Big-Name Testimonials

In their present newspaper campaign for Camel cigarettes, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company features the 30-day Camel mildness test.

A similar coast-to-coast test was recently made by hundreds of smokers under the supervision of noted throat specialists. In this test, hundreds of men and women smoked Camels, and only Camels, for 30 consecutive days . . . smoking an average of one to two packs a day. Each week the throats of these smokers were examined by noted throat specialists . . . a total of 2470 careful examinations. And these throat specialists reported not one single case of throat irritation due to smoking Camels!

Each advertisement in this campaign features two outstanding personalities who are Camel smokers. One a famous "veteran" star in some particular sport or other activity who has been a Camel smoker for years, and the other a rising young star who has recently switched to Camels as the result of making their own 30-day Camel mildness test.

Among the outstanding personalities used in this series are Johnny Vander Meer and Gene Bearden, baseball pitchers, Willie Hoppe and Willie Mosconi, billiard players, Gene Sarazen and Lew Worsham, golf professionals, Gladys Swarthout and Virginia MacWatters, opera and concert singers, Cole Porter, composer, and Patricia Morison, singing actress and star of the new Cole Porter musical comedy hit, "Kiss Me Kate."

This current Camel campaign is also being featured on the Camel radio programs, which include the Screen Guild Players, the Bob Hawk Show, the Jimmy Durante Show, and the Vaughn Monroe Show.

Dealers throughout the country who have cooperated in this campaign by placing Camel displays in their windows and on their counters have reported new sales records for this favorite cigarette.—Adv.

ORZALLI HOMERS IN EIGHTH INNING TO BREAK DEADLOCK AS BRAVES WHIP NEVADA CITY 7-2

Orzalli, Grass Valley centerfielder and leadoff batter, opened the eighth inning of Sunday's baseball game here with a home run into the rocks in centerfield after the Braves and Nevada City played each other to a standstill for seven frames. Five more hits in the last two innings netted a 7-2 victory for the Braves.

Jim Trathen, released by Nevada City last Monday, pitched a masterful five-hit performance for the Braves.

Long drives sparkled throughout the game which featured the home run, four triples, a double and 13 outfield flies.

Perry, pitching for Nevada City, matched Trathen's performance of three hits until Orzalli drove one of his fast pitches into the rocks. Jones, Nevada City centerfielder, crashed into the rocks in an attempt to snag the drive.

The game was perfect to the spectators' viewpoint and was replete wtih brilliant fielding plays and hard hit drives. Plumtree made a sensational running catch of Fouyer's long drive into the left field corner, grabbing the ball as he leaped over the log barrier. The catch came in the fifth frame and saved three runs for Jim Trathen, as there were two out and two on at the time. Ground rules called any ball over the logs on the fly was a home run. Urbano at shortstop for the Braves came up with several stops of apparently safe hits. Tiger Thompson of the locals made a sensational stop of Urbano's sizzling grounder and threw him out at first.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Manager Leo Durocher was back in Giant uniform, after his five-day suspension, and things looked pretty rosy. Cleared of charges of striking a baseball fan he got a rousing welcome from the crowd at the Polo Grounds, and then the Giants trounced the Pittsburgh Pirates, 11-4, (May 4). These photos show him on the job. Late Ice in Donner And Boca Result In Poor Fishing So Far Fishing has been very poor at Donner and Boca lakes.

Fishermen blamed the lack of luck at Donner on the fact that the ice remained until two weeks ago and the fish have not yet started to school and are still hibernating on the bottom. The few caught were rainbow and browns, the land-locked salmon, which gave sportsmen so much fun last year, still evading the lures.

Stream fishing will be opened in this district May 30. In the meantime, fishermen are warned to stay off streams and keep at least 300 feet from the mouths of streams on the lakes.

Marysville Defeats Yellowjackets Twice

Nevada City high school's A and B baseball teams were defeated Friday by a couple of hard-hitting Marysville teams, the A's going under by an 11-3 score, and the Bees suffering a 15-5 trouncing.
